DRY REPEALER DIES IN SENATE

ENFORCEMENT ACT SAFE FOR NEXT 2 YEARS

Tucker Bill Providing for Repeal of Severson Law Goes Down to Defeat According to Predictions

ALL LIQUOR LEGISLATION NOW BEYOND CHANCE OF REVIVAL

Repeal Law Voted Down Without Discussion and With no Attempt at Defense

MADISON, Wis.—By the Associated Press.—The Wisconsin prohibition enforcement law stands safe against attack for another two years, as a result of action by the senate Thursday night, killing the Tucker bill providing for repeal of the Severson liquor law.

With nonconcurrence in this repeal measure 19 to 12, the last of the bills aimed at prohibition enforcement was sent to its death by the dry upper house. All legislation relating to the liquor question is now out of the way and beyond possibility of revival.

No Debate on Bill

The senate gave little consideration to the Tucker bill. Its membership permitted no discussion of the merits of the measure, killing it without a word being offered in defense.

Senator H. J. Severson, father of the Wisconsin dry law, in the midst of a long campaign, moved that the repeal bill be taken up and disposed of. He said that it was his understanding that there was to be no discussion of the proposal.

At this juncture Senator John C. Schumann, Watertown, offered a substitute amendment providing for submission of the question to a referendum. Senator Severson raised the point of order that the substitute was not germane, and had his point sustained by Senator Henry Roethe, who was in the chair.

How Senators Lined Up

A vote, taken at once on the question of doing away with state enforcement, showed the following lineup:

For repeal—Barber, Benfey, Bligriem, Burke, Czerwinski, Gettelman, Hirsch, Mahon, Moran, Morris, Ridgway, Roethe, Schumann, Severson, Skogmo, Smith, Staudenmayer, Teasdale, Titus, White.

Against repeal—Cushman, Casperson, Clark, Garey, Heck, Huber, Johnson, Kemp, Kuehnik, Lange, Morris, Roethe, Schumann, Severson, Skogmo, Smith, Staudenmayer, Teasdale, Titus, White.

Paired, Quick for the bill; Werden against.

This ended the attempt of assembly to follow the example set by New York in repealing its state enforcement law.

Wicks and Ives alike agreed that with the senate vote one of the principal issues of the next political campaign in Wisconsin was laid down.

GERMANY DECLARED ANXIOUS TO MAKE TERMS WITH FRANCE

London Writer Says Berlin is Seeking Method to Secure Direct Conference

LONDON.—By the Associated Press.—Developments of great importance are impending in Franco-German relations, says an article printed in the Daily Telegraph today.

The writer asserts that the German government has taken practical steps to determine a method which, without prejudicing the position of Great Britain, would lead to direct conversations between Paris and Berlin. The neutral countries of Central Europe, he adds, are being used as bases from which feelers to this end are going out.

The writer represents the German government as especially anxious because it sees that its policy in the Ruhr is gradually slipping from its control. The problem of passive resistance has become a question of maintaining the expelled German officials, Berlin insisting upon such a step and Paris as firmly refusing. At the present stage, the conversations threaten to break down on this point, says the article.

DAHL MEASURE VOTED DOWN BY 1 VOTE MARGIN

Upper House Then Reconsiders Action and Bill is Revived and Carried Over Until Next Wednesday

SENSATIONAL CHARGES MADE BY RIDGWAY IN DEBATE ON BILL

Elkhorn Man Declares He Was Approached With Proposal to "Sell" His Vote

MADISON, Wis.—By the Associated Press.—The senate voted 16 to 15 to kill the Dahl general income tax bill, and then when Senator W. A. Titus, Fond du Lac, changed his vote, reconsidered its action, reviving the bill. On motion of Senator Huber the resurrected tax proposal was carried over until next Wednesday.

La Follette progressive republicans used every means to save the last tax bill of the session from defeat. They say the proposal almost died by the close margin of one vote, only to be brought fully back to life by the changed stand of Senator Titus, who announced that if the measure could be satisfactorily amended, he would support it on another occasion.

A vote on a motion made by Senator Henry Roethe to nonconcur in the Dahl revenue measure, showed the following lineup:

For killing the bill—Benfey, Burke, Clark, Czerwinski, Gettelman, Kuehnik, Lange, Mahon, Moran, Morris, Ridgway, Roethe, Skogmo, Smith, Titus, White.

Against killing the bill—Barber, Bligriem, Cushman, Casperson, Garey, Hirsch, Huber, Johnson, Kemp, Polakowski, Quick, Schumann, Severson, Staudenmayer, Teasdale.

Paired—Heck for the bill; Werden against the bill.

Charges Feature Debate

Debate on the proposed revision of the Wisconsin income tax law was featured by charges of Senator Eldo Ridgway, Elkhorn, that an attempt had been made to "buy" his vote by offers of jobs.

The senator declared that he could not vote for the Dahl bill without being put in the position of having, so he said, "sold his vote." He explained that he had voted for two previous revenue measures, including the finance committee compromise bill.

The Dahl bill, first killed and then revived, would produce $14,000,000 from incomes by establishing an increased tax on individual earnings ranging from one percent on the first $1,000 of taxable income to ten percent on incomes over $15,000. It would set up a corporation rate ranging from two to seven percent, with a tax on one-half of stock dividends. A personal property offset of $10 would be allowed both corporations and individuals. The distribution of returns would be sixty percent to the state and forty percent to municipalities.

Last Chance to Fill Pledges

Senators Henry Huber, Howard Teasdale, A. E. Garey, and Quick, spoke for the bill, all stressing the fact that it represented the last chance of the legislature to carry out the platform pledges of La Follette progressives to enact a bill revising the Wisconsin income tax system. They asserted that the measure would relieve the general property of some of its tax burden, shifting the added tax expense to incomes.

Senators Ben Mahon, Milwaukee; Henry Roethe, Fond du Lac, and Titus and Ridgway opposed the bill on the floor. Senator Roethe urged an interim committee to study the whole tax question.

The statement made by Senator Ridgway, in which he charged that his vote had been sought by certain authorities, follows in full.

The Ridgway Statement

"I am rising to the floor for two reasons: One is as a personal privilege and the other to make an argument against this tax bill.

"On the point of personal privilege I wish to say that about one month ago there appeared in the various newspapers of the state, articles that I was being considered for appointment to the state board of control. I have reasonably definite knowledge of where this originated and I wish to say relative to this appointment, before I vote on this tax measure that I never made application for this position.

"I am saying that I did not seek this position so that it would not appear to this body that I was sold out. I wish further to say that there was an attempt on the part of certain authorities to put a dog collar on me (Continued on page six)

CITIZENS SWELTER AS THERMOMETER GOES STILL HIGHER

No Relief in Sight for Upper Mississippi Valley According to Prediction

SOME OUTSIDE WORK STOPPED IN HOTTEST PART OF THE DAY

Three Cities in Country Hotter than La Crosse Wednesday

WASHINGTON.—Some relief is promised by night from the heat wave which caused numerous deaths and sent the people of the east and middle west to beaches, parks and other places in search of any cooling breezes.

No bright prospects were held out for the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the southwest portion of the Great Lakes region, however, where "continued warm" was the forecast.

Not Hottest Place

Three after a sweltering night, citizens of La Crosse awoke this morning to find the mercury soaring above the 80 mark at an early hour with prospects of equaling if not exceeding the high mark of the year reached yesterday, when a temperature of 92 was recorded.

While the heat here seems excessive, La Crosse is not the hottest spot in the United States. Think of suffering humanity in Boston New York and Washington, where a high temperature of 96 was recorded Wednesday.

La Crosse, Green Bay, Omaha, St. Paul and Minneapolis all reported a temperature of 92 Wednesday.

"Unsettled weather and not much change in temperature" is the prediction for Friday.

Outside workmen suffered from the heat yesterday and today, and in some lines work was suspended early in the afternoon to save the workmen from being overcome by the heat.

SENATE EXPRESSES ITS OPPOSITION TO SURTAX PROPOSALS

Kills Severson Surtax Amendment to Board of Control Appropriation Measure

MADISON, Wis.—The Wisconsin senate displayed its attitude toward surtax amendments to large appropriation bills by defeating the first of these measures at its session Wednesday night. Voting, 17 to 15, the upper house killed the Severson surtax amendment to the appropriation for the board of control.

Senator H. J. Severson, author of the proposed amendment, told the upper house that should a general income tax bill pass the legislature, the surtax would be done away with, but should that fail a means of raising funds to finance the state government would be provided by the surtax proposal. He said that there was little likelihood that any appropriation would get through the assembly unless some means of financing were proposed.

Following is the line-up on the first surtax move:

For the tax—Barber, Bligriem, Cushman, Casperson, Garey, Hirsch, Huber, Johnson, Kemp, Polakowski, Quick, Schumann, Severson, Staudenmayer, Titus, White.

Against the tax—Benfey, Burke, Clark, Czerwinski, Gettelman, Kuehnik, Lange, Mahon, Moran, Morris, Ridgway, Roethe, Skogmo, Smith, Staudenmayer, Teasdale.

BOY INJURED AT VICTORY; REPORT SHOOTING SCRAPE

The five-year-old son of William Johnson, section foreman for the Burlington road at Victory, was run down and injured by a tourist automobile, said to be from Chicago, on Tuesday evening, according to a report from Victory. The boy was quite badly injured, and was removed to the Lutheran hospital here for treatment and observation.

It was also reported that after the accident, Tuesday evening, Victory residents, aroused over the affair, fired several shots after the motorists as they left town. This, however, could not be confirmed in a long distance conversation with Victory residents Thursday morning.

TEN NEGROES DEAD, MANY INJURED, IN TENEMENT BLAZE

CHICAGO, Ill.—Ten negroes are known to have been killed and at least twenty-five were injured in a fire which swept a three-story tenement here early Thursday. Scores of heroic rescues were made by firemen.

Later Joseph Smith, wealthy negro owner of the furniture store on the ground floor where the fire started, was arrested.

Prior to the deliberations the secretary declared there was no doubt of the general right to seize contraband within American waters, but added that the question whether an agent of the American government dared destroy a foreign government seal presented a grave problem.

FATE OF MRS. DALEY NOW RESTS WITH JURY; CASE IS ARGUED ON THURSDAY

Auto Privilege Tax Bill Passed By Senate Today

MADISON, Wis.—The senate Thursday passed the Polakowski bill calling for a highway privilege tax to take the place of the present personal property tax on automobiles. This measure, estimated to produce $2,500,000 annually, was put through the upper house on a 16 to 15 vote with Lieut.-Gov. George F. Conings casting the deciding ballot.

Funds raised by the proposed privilege tax would be paid to localities in which collected to be used for road building purposes. The personal property tax offset on automobiles would be eliminated. This measure is in addition to the weight tax and gasoline tax bills already passed by both houses of the legislature and increases the total proposed revenue for road purposes to $11,500,000 annually.

The highway privilege tax proposed in the Polakowski bill would assess the local personal property tax rate on the valuation of automobiles, rather than establishing a flat two percent rate based upon valuation.

GORDON HITS AT DIFFERENT STORIES TOLD

Judge Wickham and District Attorney Cross Examine Mrs. Daley on Details of Shooting

STATEMENTS MADE TO DOCTORS POLICE ARE CONTRADICTED

Cowie and Doherty Maintain that Shooting Was Accidental, Justifiable

THE fate of Mrs. Elsie Daley, charged with first degree murder in the death by shooting of her husband, Chicago Jack Daley, on April 18, last, at their home Cliffwood Inn, now rests in the hands of the jury. The last arguments were made Thursday afternoon and Judge Wickham delivered his charge to the jury. Arguments were begun Thursday morning, George H. Gordon has assisted District Attorney Stanley Gordon during the trial, made the opening statement for the prosecution. John H. Doherty made the opening address for the defense. Stanley Gordon followed Mr. Doherty and the closing argument for the defense was made by R. S. Cowie.

Mrs. Daley went virtually all of the time Mr. Doherty was addressing the jury. He laid particular stress on the alleged love of Elsie Daley for Jack Daley, although the latter abused, beat, struck and shot at her and although once he married and lived with his wife two years then divorcing her, returning to Elsie Daley in the end. As he spoke of this unexplainable situation of the love of a woman for a man, though the man ill treated her, Mrs. Daley's figure shook with sobs. Her sister, Mrs. Anna Smith of Elgin, Ill., who has been her constant companion during the trial, also wept, and from time to time her brother, Max Nass, sitting just in front of the first row of spectators also applied a handkerchief to his eyes.

The "high spot" of Wednesday afternoon's session of the trial was the attack made by the state on Mrs. Daley's story of what happened in their bedroom just prior to the murder. Jack Daley was shot. This verbal assault on her testimony came when Mrs. Daley was cross examined by District Attorney Gordon. In the morning she was called to the stand by Mr. Cowie and told the story of her life, laying stress on her career from the time she first met Jack Daley to the hour in which she was taken to the city jail after shooting her husband.

Can't Recall Her Statements

Mrs. McGarry, Bannan and Armstrong and Policeman Rick and Bender who went to Cliffwood Inn in response to Mrs. Daley's calls for help on the night of April 18 testified that Mrs. Daley had told them she was standing at the foot of the bed and that she intended to shoot into the bed to scare Daley, as she had done many times before. Mrs. Daley's alleged statement to Chief Webster was introduced as evidence. In the statement she is alleged to have told the chief that Daley threw the revolver on the bed and that she picked it up, intending to shoot into the bed, but that as she shot Daley threw himself to one side and the bullet struck him in the abdomen. In the statement Mrs. Daley also said that Jack Daley obtained a divorce in Waukegan three years ago and that she married him shortly thereafter.

Mrs. Daley, under cross examination by District Attorney Gordon, denied remembering ever having seen Dr. Armstrong of Prairie du Chien, who accompanied Drs. McGarry and Bannan to Cliffwood Inn when Daley was shot. She also declared she could not recall having told the doctors, policeman and the district attorney that she stood at the foot of the bed and shot, with the intention of shooting into the bed to scare Daley. "If I said it, it isn't true," she asserted.

Gives Cost of Inn

Mrs. Daley admitted that Daley had been married and divorced from Ellen Barrett in Waukegan but could not remember whether she was a witness for Daley in that trial or not. Mrs. Daley admitted that Cliffwood Inn cost them $5,500, that they paid (Continued on page six)

TROTSKY HINTS AT PACT WITH FRANCE ATTACKS BRITAIN

Soviet War Minister Blames British Government for French Invasion of Ruhr

MOSCOW. — By The Associated Press.—An attack on England, hints of a Russo-French rapprochement, and a plea for "more metal in our national character" marked an address by Leon Trotsky, Soviet war minister, Tuesday before the all-Russian congress of metal workers.

"If an ultimatum is presented to us," he exclaimed, referring to the recent British notes, "let us create a detachment of airplanes. If a coup d'etat occurs in Bulgaria, let us build another detachment of airplanes and if there is a coup d'etat in Persia, build more planes."

"The iron in our will must be transferred to the iron wings of airplanes; then we can say, looking high above our squadrons, 'This is the coup d'etat in Persia'—and so on. If we transform the criminalities of the bourgeoisie into airplanes, then perhaps we shall be able some time to bring an end to their criminalities."

Accuses Great Britain
M. Trotsky said England and Italy had, according to information at hand, assisted in the Bulgarian coup d'etat, and the British had aided in the nationalist overthrow in Persia.

"It is the same in regard to the Ruhr—if England had not wished France to do so there would have been no Ruhr occupation. To bring two peoples into struggle while they rest aside themselves, in order to be able to appropriate the results, is the traditional policy of the English bourgeoisie."

Russia, by yielding, saved herself from falling into Lord Curzon's trap, Trotsky said, finally forcing the idea into the souls of the British bourgeoisie that Russia wanted peace.

ASSEMBLYMAN ASKS PROBE OF CHARGES OF MISCONDUCT ON PART OF STATE LEGISLATORS

MADISON, Wis.—Assemblyman E. H. Johnson of Burnett county, who Wednesday introduced in the lower house a joint resolution calling for a comprehensive investigation into charges of personal and official misconduct on the part of certain legislators, declared that he is convinced there is "absolutely no ground for the charges" but that he wanted "an investigation in order to clear the names of himself and other assemblymen."

"It has been charged, both through the press, and on the floor of the assembly that members have appeared on the floor while in a drunken condition, that they indulge in drinking and gambling orgies and that they accept bribes from outsiders to advocate or oppose certain legislation."

"I flatly deny the truth of any such charges and it is because I want my name cleared from any such blanket indictment that I am demanding an investigation. There is no finer or more upright group of men in the state than the members of the Wisconsin Assembly. I have never seen a drunk man on the assembly floor. I know that for the most part the members do not patronize wild parties at night, and if a member ever so much as accepted a cigar in return for a favorable vote on some bill, I have not heard of it."

"These charges are unjust and uncalled for slander against our legislators and should be investigated and proven false. Some members are of the opinion that we should keep quiet on the subject and pay no attention to such charges, but I believe silence on our part would be acquiescence, the public will believe the charges are true. We owe it to ourselves to deny them, and prove them false."

Mr. Johnson said he had no idea as to whether his resolution would be adopted or killed by the assembly. His action was entirely unexpected. Although investigation talk has been rife in the senate for the last week or two, there has been no hint of such a thing in the lower house. The resolution went to the committee on revision and after being printed will be placed on the calendar for some day next week.

BEHOLD I COME

Let Reason Rule

CENSORSHIP keeps bobbing up in one form or another. Perhaps its latest appearance was in the New York legislature where a so-called "clean book" bill was, fortunately, killed. Censorship in some form or other, some means of imposing an artificial standard of decency, or patriotism, or some other desirable virtue, is always being proposed for every form of public expression. And we should like to see the public a little more aroused on the subject than they are. Because a general apathy in the face of a vigorous and earnest minority is quite likely to let the minority have its way before it becomes awake to the significance of what is going on.

We yield to no one in our advocacy of cleanliness on the stage, screen, bookstand or press. Readers will recall numerous instances in which this newspaper has voiced its disgust with prurieny or other forms of dirt in public. But that is not to say "censorship." It is not to deliver the public conscience into the hands of any organization of individuals, however selected.

It is impossible to set up a practical code for censorship, because all depends upon the minds and tastes of the censors. And censorship places too much power in the hands of individuals, a power that in the nature of the whole idea is irresponsible. A censor, theoretically guardian of the public morals, in practice is the attorney for his own ideas. What runs counter to his notion of decency, however strained—and the person who will accept the idea of censorship or the job of censor is almost certain to be an extremist along some line—will not be passed. Censorship of the sort that is obviously intended by such laws would bar Rabelais, Boccaccio, Fielding, parts of Shakespeare, many of the greatest of the French fictionists, even passages of the Bible itself. It is true that one would not put certain famous books in the hands of children or immature minds; but it is not equally desirable to regard the entire public as children unfit to judge for themselves, and so to cut them off from the heritage of the ages. There is in these things a rule of reason. To try to fix the changing complex of public taste into the straight-jacket of the moment's moral fashion is to submit to a rule of unreason. That certain passages in Shakespeare are now necessarily expurgated does not mean that the great dramatist's poetry was indecent. It means simply that public taste has changed. It will change again. And literature which does not reflect the life of its time, which does not give a true understanding of how men acted and thought and spoke in their day, is not worth the name.

From prurieny, from dirt for dirt's sake, the public may be guarded sufficiently by the police powers which the state now possesses. Doubtless the administration of these powers is frequently neglected to the result that much that is offensive and harmful has its brief run upon the stage of events. But the remedy is to insist upon a more watchful administration of public business, not to put a blanket control upon all the artists of past and present. If a thing is dirty, it can be proved to the satisfaction of a jury, and the offender punished. If the jury fails to agree it is evidence that there is a question among reasonable men about the matter at issue, though extremists rave. And it is better to submit such matters to reasonable men, and to abide by their verdict, than to endow extremists with authority to rule or ruin.

It is all comparative. To clean-minded folks quite conscious of the evil which may be done, it usually appears that the harm done by indecency, which always kills itself through the repugnance it arouses in the normal majority of people, is relatively small compared to the intolerable flatness and restraint which a censorship of routine ideas would place upon creative genius. The gain is not worth the risk.

Stay on the right side while driving autos or bachelors.

A Future Miracle

AN INTERESTING passage from an interview with Lieutenant Kelley, one of the famous team that flew from coast to coast without stopping:

"Did you happen to think that if you had been travelling about nine times faster, you would have arrived at the solar hour on which you left?"

"Yes."

Adds the interviewer—an army air service man himself—"it will be remembered that the fastest types of airplanes today go about eight times faster than was possible a few years ago, so it may not be too bold to say that it will soon be possible to leave New York and get to San Francisco at the same hour of departure."

We can accept all of that but the "soon." There is some reason to believe that airplanes will not greatly exceed their present speeds until some new departures are made in design and power. They have pretty nearly reached the maximum speed along present lines. But at that the notion of sailing from New York at 9 o'clock in the morning and reaching San Francisco at 9 o'clock the same morning is within the range of possibility.

Bewildering

"I'm the only woman bricklayer in the country," says Mrs. Florence Thompson of Long Island City. Her husband runs a bricklaying school, so she thought she'd take a hand at it. "If I want a new hat I go out and lay brick for a couple of days, and then there will be no argument about it."

Here's a practical precedent for housewives who are always wondering how they could make a little pin-money in spare time.

An old-fashioned man must feel bewildered as he ponders the existence of a woman bricklayer and an industrial system so highly systematized that there's actually a school giving diplomas in bricklaying.

A Good Hunch

ON THE front cover of the new La Crosse telephone directory appears a photograph of a beautiful road, instantly identifiable to La Crosse folks as one of the lovely bits of scenery around their home town.

Now there's an idea!

Mr. Business man, how many pieces of advertising matter do you get out in the course of a year, upon which you could do your bit to advertise your town? Why don't you? It wouldn't cost more than a few dollars for a cut, and certainly a charming segment of La Crosse's lovely surroundings would add "something different" to your advertising.

Try it.

Fat

WE Americans eat 44 pounds of fat a year for every man, woman and child. The press agent of a soap company figures it out. People who aren't vegetarians will say, "That's why we're such a strong, active nation."

But they won't be able to explain why the average person in Omaha eats 154 pounds of fat a year, while in Detroit—as peppy a city as is—the fat figure is only 39, which is even less than Washington's—48. Our "steam" is a matter of iodine, adrenalin and other chemicals secreted by our endocrine glands, and climate seems to vary the secretion.

The Tamblyn Plate

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"I hate the thing," cried Jean, meaning the Tamblyn plate; "to think that a miserable piece of Wedgwood should cause so much unhappiness!"

Rod Tamblyn nodded. "Our ancestors seemed to enjoy an endless feud over its possession—why, Jean, do you realize that your Aunt Robina has not spoken a word to my mother for thirty years?"

"Poor dears," murmured Jean; "that began long before we were born. In those days they just wrangled over the possession of the plate. I don't believe any of them really cared very much for it, but one word led to another."

"And each word bitterer than the last. I wonder how it started?" Rod lightly touched a tangle of Jean's soft black hair.

"I know—Aunt Robina told me one day; your grandmother and mine were the dearest friends and when they were to be married, they decided to have a double wedding. Grandmother and her family journeyed to the Tamblyn place in Maryland, and the festivities began. Wedding gifts poured in for both brides, and among them was the Wedgwood plate. The wrapping paper and box had been destroyed and there was no evidence of a feud, so that it could not be determined to whom it belonged, nor who was the giver."

"Why didn't they toss a coin?" demanded Rod.

"They quarreled politely after the honeymoon was over, and so many unkind things were said that Mrs. Tamblyn determined to keep the plate in the stern belief that it was intended for her—and my dear granny felt so resentful that at last they drew lots for it, and your grandmother got the plate. Their beautiful friendship was broken and the feud was on—"

she sighed.

"And has continued for nearly fifty years. It has risen like a wall between us and happiness. I want to marry you, Jean, plate or no plate; that is, if you dare trust your precious self to the scion of a foolish family such as mine."

Jean giggled. "My own family is and has been perfectly idiotic about it."

"Hum," smiled Rod, "and mother called you 'that Lunning girl.'"

"What can we do?"

"Put a stop to it!"

"Bust up the plate!"

"Coh! And have Aunt Robina put up her noses and say 'No!' So he has broken our plates? No! don't do that, Roddy."

"You suggest something?"

Jean wrinkled her pretty brows and concentrated. Rod found it very fascinating to watch her and he reddened when she suddenly shot a look at him from under her eyes.

"Do you know my cousin, Mrs. Adah Willard?"

"She belongs to a branch of the family that mother visits," he grinned.

"She loves me. She would do anything for me," whispered Jean dreamily.

"So would I," murmured Rod in her ear.

"Do you dare?" she challenged, whispering a few words in his ear. For answer, he took her in his arms.

Mrs. Henry Tamblyn and Miss Robina Lunning had often met at Mrs. Willard's home. Their greetings were a matter of comment, the country people being so much in the habit of Mrs. Tamblyn's "saintly smile and slight inclination from Mrs. Robina. The young people were not supposed to know one another.

One winter afternoon they were both taking tea with Mrs. Willard; the former had dropped in and they were talking about a game of bridge, when Jean Lunning came running in, rosy with cold, her dark eyes deeper and darker than ever, and her cheeks flushed with her head, but a warm furry cloak covered her dress.

Mrs. Willard hugged her young kinswoman, and kissed her tenderly. Miss Robina said, "Why, child, in mild weather, and Jean dropped a graceful courtesy to Mrs. Tamblyn and the former nodded not unkindly, and the latter beamed and twinkled."

"Take off your coat, Jean," said Mrs. Willard, and the latter received the garment and put it in the hall. Jean was standing, all in white, dainty, sweet young thing at which they all looked with yearning eyes. The latter wandered over to the window and picked up a prayerbook from the table.

Suddenly Rodney Tamblyn appeared from somewhere, laid a fat parcel in his mother's lap, whispered a word to her and joined Jean in front of the doorway. Just then the minister asked, "Who giveth this woman?"

The older women were too astounded to notice, but Adah Willard stepped forward and laid Jean's hand in Rod's arm brown one.

When it was all over, Miss Robina gasped brokenly, "Jean, how could you?"

"Rodney, Rodney!" whispered Mrs. Tamblyn as he came to kiss her.

Miss Robina arose and glanced at Jean's frightened, pleading rose-leaf face. "Adah Willard, this is too much!" she frowned.

J.R. WILLIAMS

"They love each other," said Mrs. Willard in her gentle voice.

"You know—the feeling," trembled Miss Robina's voice.

Rod blushed lightly to Jean's hand and led her to his mother.

"This is my wife, mother—we have done a startling thing, I know, and it's a poor sort of wedding for Jean—no wedding presents or anything, but giving love. Will you give us a wedding gift?"

"Of course, my son," she said with dignity. "I will not fail—even though she stopped abruptly to hide her emotion."

"The gift is in your hands—unwrap it, please—you see? That is all we want."

They all stared at the round flat object in Mrs. Tamblyn's shaking hands.

"The Tamblyn plate!" she said, giving it to Jean, who was crying softly. Miss Robina's face was working in a remarkable manner.

"Thank you, mother, and now," Rod smiled, looking at the older woman, "since the Tamblyn plate belongs to both families—half and half, why can't the family feud be dropped in a friendly cup of tea? Jean and I want to catch the 9:30 for the south."

From nowhere, in particular Mrs. Willard produced a small wedding cake which just dried the Wedgwood plate, and the wedding ended in a buzz of friendly talk and laughter, and tearful farewells as the happy pair drove off in Rod's big car.

"May I give you a lift home?" asked Miss Robina of Mrs. Tamblyn.

"Thank you, my dear, but I will stop and get the book you spoke about," and the two elderly ladies rustled away, after gracious goodnights to Mrs. Willard and Mr. Bunny.

INDIAN IS TOO GENEROUS SAY "Y" WORKERS

By MARIAN HALE
NEW YORK—"Protect the Indian from his generosity!" Miss Edith M. Dabb, head of work of the National board of the Y. W. C. A. on the Indian reservations, and who has lived among Indians for over 20 years, says that the tendency of the red man to give away everything he owns during the progress of certain tribal dances is one of the greatest bars to his advancement.

"The appeal sent to all Indians by Charles H. Burke, commissioner of Indian affairs, from Washington, asks them to refrain from all dances and pow-wows that mean neglect of crops or live stock in their absence," she says, "and in this same appeal he points out the injustice to their families of the 'give away' feature prevalent at so many dances.

"This 'give away' feature has very serious consequences when it involves the wives and daughters of the participants. When it involves live stock, farming implements or teams, an Indian often returns home unable to farm or so seriously handicapped by his losses that his chances at a livelihood are gone.

Misunderstood
"Indian dances are often misunderstood in the east," she continues. "Originally Indian dances were ceremonial in nature and largely connected with religious observances. The dances as now danced for spectators have little of their original significance.

"Indians are naturally reserved and shrink at being stared at. Their original dances were done with all the beauty of religious fervor, and almost invariably done in secret.

"Among the Zunis and the Pueblos, dances are of two kinds—those open to the public and those done in private. It is only those of the secret dances, that result in orgies and all-night camps, and the commercialized dances, that tempt the Indian away from a livelihood for his family," that Commissioner Burke had in mind when sending his appeal.

Degenerating
"The white man's influence has had its part in making many of these dances degenerate. Boys and girls of the tribes who go back to the reservations from government and mission schools regard these dances as the greatest factor retarding the development of their people.

"After these dances are planned so they will offer immediate and powerful temptations to these young people. Recently a number of returned students united to fight their influence.

Miss Dabb is among those who collaborated with G. E. E. Lindquist in the preparation of "The Red Man of the United States." Assisting her in her work are three college-trained women of the Sac and Fox Sioux and Cherokee tribes who work among girls of their own race.

Mrs. R. B. Lowry Interviews Authors of State on Trip

Mrs. Robert Lowry, who was a delegate to the recent district convention of Women's Clubs at Baraboo, also visited Madison, and during her visit secured some delightful interviews with authors of the state. Wisconsin has much to be proud of in her state literary production in songs, stories, and verses, says Mrs. Lowry. She also brought home with her many interesting examples of Wisconsin workmanship.

Household Suggestions

WHITE SILK STOCKINGS
Wash your white silk stockings and gloves in water to which ammonia has been added—about a tablespoon to two quarts of water. This will prevent them from becoming yellow.

SIFT SODA FIRST
Sift your soda before you put it into your cake unless you dissolve it in hot water.

MAYONNAISE DRESSING
In making mayonnaise dressing stir the beaten eggs into the cold vinegar and when the mixture is boiled the dressing will not curdle. When eggs are added to the hot vinegar this is almost inevitable.

RELIEF FOR BURNS
Put a little damp soda on your burn and it will relieve the pain.

Fabrics Combined to Make Attractive Dresses

COPYRIGHT BY MC CALLS

Many of the summer dresses are planned especially to make effective a combination of materials.

Plain silks are combined with printed silks, figured cottons with plain ones, stripes with solid colors. The yoke and hidden front panel of one of the dresses sketched contain...

trust with the rest of the frock. The other dress is oddly cut and most unusual in its treatment of the two materials. A zig-zag band around the waist is something not every woman would dare to attempt. It is extremely smart, however, and cleverly effective.

VIOLIN NUMBERS BY MRS. GALE DELIGHT CLUB DINNER FOLKS

AN ATTRACTIVE feature of the afternoon ladies' day at the Country club on Wednesday was violin numbers given by Mrs. Alfred H. Gale of Prescott, Ariz., which followed the luncheon. Mrs. Gale played a Norwegian Rhapsody by Gustav Br. Lange; a Canon by Clarence Cameron White, and A Dream of Youth by Felix Winteritz. Mrs. Gale was accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss Rosalia Hermann. She played with her usual charm which always delights her friends. Mrs. Gale will be remembered as Miss Florence Hermann, popular and accomplished daughter of Mrs. Anna Hermann.

Luncheon was served to sixty guests. Of the number Mrs. M. F. Fitz and Mrs. G. J. Egan were hostesses to children. Seven tables of bridge were played and the favors for high scores were awarded to Mrs. Anna Howard of Chicago and Mrs. E. D. Forsyth of Athens, O. A portion of the afternoon was passed by the ladies in shopping for the club.

THIS THURSDAY night the Episcopal League of the First Methodist church will hold an open social in the hall of the church. In addition to plans for cream, there will be refreshments for motor parties and sundries for others who choose to stay and visit. In case of rain the affair will be postponed.

MRS. KATH SWANMEN, assistant postmistress at Baraboo and two children, Nedra and Karl, Jr., have returned to their home after spending a week with friends in the city.

MISS MARIE ELVA KELLER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Keller, left last night on an extended trip to Yellowstone Park, points in Oregon, and San Francisco and Los Angeles. She will join a friend at Hingham, N. D., who will make the trip with her. They expect to be gone six or seven weeks.

WEEKLY BOOK REVIEW

By James W. Dean
NEW YORK—Changes in the human manner of living, in universal and national customs always have been rather generally forecast by literature. Or rather, such changes are first indicated by literature.

Thus one reading between the lines of recent books senses that a new cycle of thought, of human behavior is upon us.

The flapper has let her hair and her skirt grow longer. Her elders, forced out of the picture by her vitality until they aped her startling ways and sought artificial rejuvenation, have resumed their dignified noise. The world is in an anticipatory attitude. What next? Literature of the next six or 12 months will tell.

The age that just past has been largely an era of pretense. Worship of false gods and mocking worship of true gods have been reflected in the literature of the day. For that reason little has been built that will endure.

Much of the contemporary American fiction has given a true picture of our times and customs, but it has only reflected the surface. It has not penetrated to the point where it reveals the heart of life. It has lacked psychological and pathological depth.

Thus we find that the contributions to literature of the past few years that will endure after this generation are non-fiction works. Such, for instance, as "The Outline of History," "The Mind in the Making" and "The Story of Mankind."

Probably the most comprehensive clinic on contemporary literature that has been published is "The Doctor Looks at Literature" by Dr. Joseph Collins. He is a neurologist of wide reputation. He also bears a considerable reputation as a literary critic.

Thus he approaches his subject with a double-barreled weapon. He brings down what he fires at, but my quarrel with him is that he has hunted out only the extraordinary species. Sinclair Lewis is the only American who seems worthy of his attention. That is natural since Dr. Collins is a neurologist and seeks the odd tangents of life for his exploration. Americans haven't run off on as many odd tangents as the peoples of other countries.

The most complete picture that Dr. Collins draws is that of D. H. Lawrence, author of the "Women in Love." The doctor has made a clinical chart of Lawrence's mind. He tells us just why he writes what he does.

Of "Women in Love," Dr. Collins says, "A large portion of the book is, in my judgment, obscene, deliberately, studiously, incessantly, obscene. Obscenity, like everything else, has its gradations. Its intensities, its variations, and the author of this book knows how to ring the changes upon obscenity in a way that would make Aetna green with envy."

Of the author he says, "I maintain that both from the artistic and the psychological standpoint, Mr. Lawrence's performances are those of a neophyte and a duffer. He can make words roar and sing and murmur, and by so doing he can make moral, poise, God-fearing, sentiment-valuing man creep and shudder; indeed, almost welcome the obscurity of the grave, so that he will not have to meet his fellow again in the flesh. He labels and he hears false witness against man."

There are persons in the world such as Mr. Lawrence describes. So are there legends and lunatics. We do not talk about them as if the whole world were made up of them; and we do not look for world reformers or world orderers among them. * * * He has debased an unusual talent and devoted his splendid endowment of artistry to spinning the wheel of evolutionary progress, even to spinning it in a reverse direction."

Dr. Collins believes that "Main Street" was a complete work, but that Sinclair Lewis' psychology was faulty or incomplete in "Babbitt." Of the former, he says, "Mental life in the broadest sense in behavior, instinctive and intelligent. Few have shown themselves more competent to observe, estimate and describe such behavior than the author of 'Main Street.' That novel was a study of temperament, a portrayal of environment, and an attempt to estimate their interaction and to state the result.

"It was recognized by those who had encountered or experienced the temperament and who had lived, voluntarily or compulsively, in the environment, to be a true cross-section of life, focused beneath a microscope, and anyone who examined it had before him an accurate representation of the conscious experiences as well. This permitted the reader, even suggested to him, to compare them to his own sensations and ideas.

"Thus it was that emotions, sentiments, and judgments were engendered which, given expression, constituted something akin to public opinion. The result was a beneficence to American literature, for the purpose of the writer was known, and it was obvious to the knowing that he had accomplished it."

Referring to the latter book, Dr. Collins writes "When Mr. Babbitt wallows in the trough of the waves of emotion because he doesn't get the affection and recognition from his children which is his due, he alienates our sympathy and Mr. Lewis reveals the vulnerable tendon of his own psychology. Mr. Lewis' psychology would have struck a truer note if he had differentiated more clearly between the universal parent tragedy and Babbitt's own failure as a parent."

Dr. Collins says that "Babbitt" may be construed as the American intelligence of Lewis' generation turning on its task master. He believes that Lewis got the Babbitt iron in his soul when he worked as an advertising-copy writer and that he meant to turn Babbitt inside out and hold him up to scorn, but that as he developed the character he felt sorry for him and pitied Babbitt in his sense of frustration by social environment and circumstance and admired him for telling his son not to let himself be similarly frustrated.

Space does not permit extended consideration of other authors with whom Dr. Collins deals, but if one is contemplating a reading of Freud, Dostolevsky, the epic poet, James Joyce, Ireland's literary antinomian, Marcel Proust, psychological novelist of France, or the works of Katherine Mansfield, Rebecca West, Stella Benson, Virginia Woolf or others who interpret life as it has directly touched them, it would be very profitable first to turn to "A Doctor Looks at Literature." It will remove many obstacles to a full understanding of these contributions to psychological and psychoanalytical literature.

The T. B. Clinic Doing Good Work Throughout State

Over 26,000 people have been examined at the free chest clinics of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association which will hold a clinic in La Crosse next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the city hall.

That the clinics have been of incalculable service to hundreds of Wisconsin people is not doubted by those who have attended them and the following extract from a letter received by the association from a man examined at the June clinic at La Crosse, 1922, is typical of many letters in the organization's files.

"As I am already at the sanatorium, I thought I would write you a letter and let you know how I like it here. This is certainly a beautiful place, located so beautifully among the wooded hills here. I do not think one could wish for a more lovely place for rest and comfort and the regaining of lost health. I like this place just fine. Nearly all the patients are in the best of spirits. They certainly are a jolly bunch. Everybody is friendly and it does not take long to get acquainted. I suppose you remember me. I was examined at the La Crosse clinic June 13, 1922. It will be one week next Tuesday since I arrived here, and I already feel better than I have felt for a long time."

Six months later the same patient wrote from his home:

"I am now at home. I left the sanatorium on the 14th. I am still taking the cure at home, and since taking it I have gained quite a bit in weight. When I started to take it I weighed 142 pounds, and at present I weigh 165 pounds, so you see I have done pretty well."

"When I left the sanatorium the doctors advised me to go to a clinic when I had been home a month or so and be examined at the La Crosse clinic. I was very anxious to see if they could find any trouble with my lungs, and whether the TB was healed up. So I am writing to you to let me know when the 'traveling clinic' will be in this neighborhood again."

This patient's case was discovered in its early stage; he took sanatorium treatment and in a few months was on the road to recovery. If you have any of the symptoms of the disease or any other reason to believe that you may have tuberculosis, do not fail to go to the clinic. The early examination and course of prevention costs in this case, nothing of all, and a cure is often expensive and usually requires months and sometimes years of treatment.

SENATOR WILLIS TALKS WEDNESDAY AT CHAUTAUQUA

Ohio Solon Discusses Problems of Nation and Offers Sug- gestions for Solution

Speaking of the immigration problem at the White and Myers chautauqua at the fair grounds Wednesday evening, Senator Willis of Ohio, member of the senate committee on immigration, declared that he was more interested in the kind of blood there would be in the American citizenry a hundred years from now than he was in finding cheap labor for mills, mines and factories.

He said in this connection that the "three percent law" on immigration would stand as it is, but suggested plans which would be of great benefit to the immigrants and to the citizens of the nation. The first solution of the problem which he offered was a system of inspection of the immigrants before they left their native lands; the second was a system of fees not prohibitive, to be collected from the immigrants, and turned over to a fund for Americanization work.

Praises Scenery
Senator Willis drove to La Crosse from Bloomington, Wis., Wednesday for his chautauqua appearance, and was very much impressed with the beauty of the country surrounding La Crosse. He spent several minutes Wednesday evening in praising the wonderful surroundings here, and read a few lines from a poem which he wrote after seeing the natural beauties of this locality. Senator Willis' appearance here was a part of the regular program of the White and Myers chautauqua, which is being given in the city under the auspices of the La Crosse Lions' Club, for the benefit of the Y. W. C. A.

Solutions of Problems
In his address the senator pointed out that the problems which confront the nation today are really only individual problems magnified, and that the way to solve them is to treat them in the same light as individual problems are treated. Some of the definite solutions of the problems suggested by Senator Willis were a sense of respect and optimism in the citizenry, and in their proper light, cheerfulness, respect for law, and a sense of duty. He expressed a firm belief in the youth of America, and his optimism in regard to the financial condition of the country. He also pointed out in favor of law enforcement and the constitutional authority of the people, and asserted that the people should play a part in any plan which would place any authority above that of the people. He further stated that the United States should loan no more money to European nations until they have paid back what they already owe.

The Hugeliet Trio, consisting of piano, violin and cello, played a beautiful musical prelude to Senator Willis' speech.

Thursday evening the final number of the chautauqua program, the presentation by the metropolitan cast of "The Storm," will be given.

BURGULARY UN-SHOULD ACT ON THIS
ELIZABETH N. J. "Lady Luck" played a low down trick on Dick Patterson, negro youth, when he tried to rob the home of Dr. Frank Steinke.

Dick removed his shoes, placed them behind a door, entered the house and climbed the stairs to the second floor when he could hear the doctor and his family talking in an adjoining room.

As the conversation continued, Dick looted.

He didn't know that the stairs creaked, and that the doctor, hearing some strange person in the house, had telephoned quietly for the police, meanwhile having his mother and brother keep up a loud conversation.

Dick had collected jewelry worth $2,500 by the time the police arrived and helped him carry it to the police station to be used as exhibit A.

On the other hand, the suit has made Dr. Larsen, whose friends say is of a most serious and sober mind, laugh uproariously.

CROP REPORT
U. S. Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, C. F. Marvin, Chief, Milwaukee, Wis., June 20, 1923. Synopsis of weather and crop conditions in Wisconsin for the week ending Tuesday, June 19th. Moderate to high temperatures prevailed. The rainfall was mostly light. This was favorable for farm work and the growth of corn. Small grains are rather short and stands are thin on light soils. Winter wheat and rye are heading out fair to good. The planting of late potatoes is completed in most sections and some are up. First cultivation of corn and potatoes completed in most sections. The cutting of alfalfa is well advanced in the extreme south and is beginning in other sections. Clover and timothy are fair. Pastures are mostly short. Truck is fair to good. Early peas are in bloom. The cutting of early cabbage has begun. Apple trees are good. Strawberries excellent. Cranberries good, beginning to bloom. Tobacco plants good and transplanting in full progress. Rain is needed in many sections. W. M. LABOVICH, temporarily in charge.

FEATURE NUMBERS AT THE RIVOLI BY HOPPE, GOETZINGER

Walter Goetzinger and Karl Hoppe, the two principal soloists of the Rivoli theatre's orchestra, have been at work early and late for the last few days arranging a special musical setting for "The Sunshine Trail," current attraction at the Rivoli, starring Douglas MacLean. The music consists of piano and violin only and those who have heard numbers by these two musicians know what a rare treat is in store for them.

Public Debate
A prohibition officer stated, a short time ago, that the third liquor traffic was gradually less than a year ago. He is wrong. I have seen more, larger and a greater variety of snakes this spring than ever before in one season. But what I started to say is that the American prohibition commission should buy a machine spreader and use it with good effect behind the far fence. Perhaps the tar would then remain in the road instead of being urged along on auto fenders. Besides, tourists could get to "The Beautiful" in a frame of mind to enjoy its beauties, instead of being too busy cursing the roads to take notice of anything else.

Tramway county, too, needs fixing. In Galesville one day this week, the full width of the street was tarred without a particle of sand on it. My car skidded so much that I forgot which way I wanted to go. C. E. B.

Skipper of Pittsburg's Toonerville Trolley Minds Babies!

Showing the two-mule power line and its "skipper", F. B. Campbell (at left).

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — They call him "motorman."

But "Skipper" F. B. Campbell, general factotum on Pittsburgh's "Toonerville Trolley," never handles a controller.

He does pull a mean pair of lines, though.

And he never has to worry about the trolley coming off. There isn't any on his car.

For his power is furnished by mules. It's the last of its line in Pennsylvania.

The car traverses a South Side street ten hours a day. Campbell has been its driver and conductor for years.

He knows everybody along the line. And everybody knows him, especially the women folks and kiddies.

Often he's called upon to do his passengers' marketing. And sometimes he minds the babies, too!

He wouldn't trade his run for the best in town, he says.

$1,000 down and had paid $2,500 on the mortgage in two years out of the proceeds of the place. She also admitted that the property was in her name, that their automobile was in her name and that the license plates were issued in her name. The Daley bank account, however, she insisted was in Jack Daley's name.

Mr. Gordon also obtained an admission from her that she frequently tended bar. The defense had sought to show that she did so in fear of Daley's wrath if she refused. The revolver which Daley was shot with was kept in the barroom sometimes but always under the pillows of their bed at night, Mrs. Daley admitted. In her direct testimony Mrs. Daley said that she did not drink. Under cross examination she admitted drinking a highball occasionally. She admitted knowing about the liquor cache under the "office" and bedroom, which was discovered by District Attorney Gordon but denied knowing that there was a quantity of wine and a gallon of alcohol there at the time of the shooting.

Admits Shooting Wife
Mrs. Daley admitted that she had shot a rifle at times, denied that she was a crack shot and denied that she had ever fired a revolver. She admitted knowing Anna Schneider and Dorothy Chopska. She denied that she ever rented rooms in the inn in couples but did admit collecting room rent sometimes from them.

Mrs. Daley then retold the story she told in the morning of how Jack Daley had gone to bed to recuperate and as he lay down pulled the light cord and broke it and the lamp globe. She told how Daley started cursing her and reached for the gun under the pillow. She flung herself at him, she said, putting her arms around his neck, with their faces a few inches apart. She pleaded with him not to shoot, she said. They remained in that position three or four minutes, she said. Then she got possession of the gun. It was a foot or so from Daley's body. She could not tell whether he threw the gun away or whether it fell from his grasp. Seizing the gun, Mrs. Daley said she threw her body backward as Jack told her to get the revolver. She could not say whether Daley seized the revolver, barrel or not. All that she could say was that as she drew backwards the gun exploded and Daley was shot.

Judge Examines Witness
At this point in the cross-examination, Judge Wickham took a hand in the quizzing. For a number of minutes the judge kept asking Mrs. Daley whether she was on the bed or on the floor when she shot. She said she couldn't remember; maybe she was partly on the bed and partly standing on the floor. She couldn't have been far from the bed, she said. The court was unable to get her to state positively whether she was kneeling on the bed or standing on the floor near the bed when the revolver exploded.

When District Attorney Gordon resumed the cross examination Mrs. Daley reiterated her statements that she had not intended to pull the trigger or that she intended to fire into the bed.

Harris There on Fatal Night
Fred Harris was a witness late Wednesday afternoon. He said he was in Cliffwood Inn the night of the shooting but left shortly before 9 o'clock. He said he stopped in to buy a cigar.

Emil Olson of Mindoro, called by the state, said that he and a friend had visited the inn and purchased homemade brandy.

Emil Owens, who had a half interest in the Cliffwood Inn, was called to the inn frequently to collect his half of the nickels put into the machine. He testified that he sold Jack Daley a 30-06 rifle and that once while he was there Mrs. Daley stood on the back porch and shot at a chicken with a 22 rim-fire and that once while he was there he saw Mrs. Daley throw a knife at a cat.

Will Family on Stand
Mr. and Mrs. Herman Willer and their daughter, Elsie, who live in the farmhouse directly opposite Cliffwood Inn, on State road, were witnesses for the state. Mr. Willer said he saw two men and two women in the barroom of Cliffwood Inn at 9:15 p. m. on the night of the shooting. He was in the milk-house at his place which is about 150 feet from the inn. He said he looked through the window of the milkhouse and saw the auto in front of the place and the people inside.

Mrs. Willer also verified these statements and said that the time was fixed because they looked at the clock when they returned to the house. She testified that they saw Mrs. Daley taking men and women to town between five and six o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Daley was placed on the stand to

Approached by Officer

"In this room an officer of this body, who is no longer now in the service of the state, came to me and said: 'Senator Ridgway, are you anxious to have that friend of yours in Walworth county appointed as county judge?' I replied: 'But I most certainly am for the reason that I believe he is the best qualified man.'

"He then replied that I should go down and talk this over with the governor and he felt that I could bring the appointment about, and not only that but I could get anything I asked for if I would only agree to vote for the governor's tax bill. This information has leaked out more or less, and I have been thus placed in a position whereby it would appear that I had been bought."

"I have voted for two tax measures at this session of the legislature and if there is no tax legislation I absolutely refuse to take the responsibility. The best tax measure that has so far appeared before this body was not killed by me."

MONTAGUES WIN TWILIGHT GAME FROM WINONA WEDNESDAY

JOHNSON BESTS HIER ON MOUND SCORE IS 2 TO 1

Wausau Hurler Evens Up With Winonan; Gets Eleven Strikeouts

MONTAGUES SCORE IN FIFTH AND SEVENTH FOR VICTORY

Mills Starts Rally for Locals' First Marker

ALTHOUGH it went only the regulation nine innings, Pitcher Johnson of Wausau squared himself with Lefty Hier of Winona at Copeland park Wednesday evening by winning the twilight attraction in a sweltering heat for the Montagues from the Winonas, 2 to 1.

Johnson opposed Hier in the eighth inning game which the Montagues, with Hier on the mound, took from the Wausau Lumberjacks three weeks ago.

Brilliant Hurling

Both Johnson and Hier turned in brilliant exhibitions from the hill, the hits being divided and 6 and 5 in favor of Johnson. The big Lumberjack started off taking the game in his own hands, whiffing seven men in the first three innings, adding four more strikeouts in the remaining sessions to make his total eleven. Hier dropped five and purposely passed Greek in the eighth inning with Johnson on. The local hurler gave no extensions.

The opposing hurlers entrenched themselves into a bitter duel for the first five innings, neither allowing a hit until that frame when Johnson let loose of three and Hier two, resulting in a marker apiece.

Winona was the first to break the monotony of zeros, hanging up their lone tally in the fifth on Abner's two-base hit and singles by Ostrum and Beranek. In the four innings remaining, Johnson closed the gateway to the bases and bury a Winona man reached the initial mark. In the last four innings, Johnson was invincible, allowing only feeble smashes that went for easy putouts.

Mills Starts Rally

Art Mills, local first sacker, started the Montague offense in the fifth inning, getting the first hit which ultimately gave the locals their first run. He was sacrificed to second by Franzini and scored on Weigant's long single over second. Franzini started the works in the seventh for what proved to be the winning tally. He cracked out a single, and by clever base running took a big lead and reached third on Weigant's second timely smash. As Deike threw in from center field for Franzini at third, Weigant went second. Abner, at third, overthrew second base in the play for Weigant and Franzini romped over the plate.

An ill-timed feature to the game was the robbing of a hit and earning an assist for himself. Prospector's smash was a Texas leaguer and Ansell rushed up on it and pegged the runner out at first. Johnson at third base made a feature stab by taking Fielder's hot liner, one of the kind that raise gradually from the plate, in the seventh inning.

Rose Quits

Rose abandoned his activity in right field in favor of Fielder in the fifth, being influenced possibly by his miff of Johnson's fly in the first inning. Fielder made two spectacular catches in right, once running clearly into centerfield territory for a parent.

"Cully" Beranek, former Nelson center fielder, now with the Champs, appeared in a Winona's uniform in left field. "Cully" contributed one hit, striking out in his other three attempts.

PIRATES MAINTAIN HOLD ON SECOND POSITION IN NATIONAL LEAGUE BY DEFEATING CARDS

CHICAGO, Ill.—By The Associated Press.—If the Boston Braves continue today to frighten the Pirates of Pittsburgh with the sort of Indian signs they have made during the current series the Cincinnati Reds will rise into second place tonight of their own deadweight, and then tomorrow a tug and tussle for runner-up in the National league will be on for Cincinnati will open a two game series thereafter resting today.

Pittsburgh maintained its hold on second place by depositing its first strong rival, St. Louis, and then it neared first by walloping the New York Giants twice out of three games but finally along came two of the weakest clubs in the league, Philadelphia and Boston, and the Pirates lost all their frightfulness.

The Reds came up another notch Wednesday by taking the third game out of four from Brooklyn, 4 to 1, knocking out of the box Dazzy Vance who held them to one hit earlier in the week. The game ended Brooklyn's road trip with six victories and eight defeats and dropped them into sixth place.

The Robins were displaced by Chicago which has been favoring near the first division for two weeks. The Cubs managed to take a game from the lately troublesome Quakers, 15 to 1, and are within one point of St. Louis which dropped another to New York, 7 to 5, giving the Giants the edge in the series.

Elmer Smith, the Yankee pinch-hitter, who has hit nine times out of fourteen times at bat this season, delivered in the crisis again Wednesday, doubling with the bases full, and enabling the Yanks to tie the score with Detroit, but the Tigers, despite a weak record, had a back and won, 3 to 7, and as Philadelphia beat Chicago, 4 to 2, in 11 innings, the American league situation resolved back to its day before status.

The Tigers went back into the first division as a squelch presented issue. Senator Henry Huber, author of the pending unemployment insurance bill, said today. He declared that the whole question involved in his proposal would more than likely be referred to an interim committee through adoption of the Titus substitute amendment to be voted on probably the last of this week.

Senators of all factions say that the bill providing for establishment of compulsory job insurance, would meet defeat by a two or three margin majority should it come directly before the upper house. They point out that the lines are so drawn that the proposal faces certain defeat at the present session.

It is explained that for this reason proponents of the measure are willing that it be submitted to an interim committee for study. At the end of two years this committee report would be submitted to the legislature with definite recommendation.

The Huber unemployment insurance bill has attracted widespread attention throughout the country, and has caused a stir among Wisconsin business men, many of whom have opposed the bill at the several committee hearings. Several times the senate was on the verge of voting on the bill, but each time action was delayed at the request of the proposal's sponsors.

At present the finance committee has the measure under consideration.

JOB INSURANCE PLAN MAY BE REFERRED TO INTERIM COMMITTEE

Senate Leaders See Defeat for Measure if Pushed Through at this Session

MADISON, Wis.—Unemployment insurance is not to come before the Wisconsin legislature at the present session as a squarely presented issue, Senator Henry Huber, author of the pending unemployment insurance bill, said today. He declared that the whole question involved in his proposal would more than likely be referred to an interim committee through adoption of the Titus substitute amendment to be voted on probably the last of this week.

Twenty-two boys and girls were awarded pigs Wednesday noon at the annual picnic of the Chamber of Commerce pig club. The weather was ideal for the picnic, and the turnout was gratifying to the committee in charge. More than 200 persons were served at the dinner. Following the excellent repast, which was served by the merchant members of the pig club, assisted by boy scouts, C. S. Van Auker, secretary of the Inter-State fair board and Frank B. Astrath, field man for the national Jersey Cattle Club, spoke briefly.

Speakers

Mr. Van Auker told of the boys and girls club work which is being sponsored at the Inter-State fair this year, urging all of the young people to enter some sort of a club contest. He described various premiums which it is possible for boys and girls to win.

Mr. Astrath, in his talk, further emphasized the value of club work, and told of the possibilities of happiness and prosperity in the livestock game, provided that pure bred stock were used. He cited the four essentials of the successful stockman: "Feed, Water, Breed and Advertise," explaining each in detail.

That's the motto that "Sonny"

McTavish (Douglas MacLean, tries to follow through life. But while

"Sonny" does good to others he is done good himself in the course of his altruistic adventures in "The Sunshine Trail."

Thomas H. Ince's latest production, which comes to the Rivoli there today is one of the snappiest comedy dramas of the season. It has a most dramatic series of adventures intertwined with a delightfully amusing chain of complications. And through it all runs a vein of satire on the after-war adventures of most doughboys in their home towns.

It's a sad but highly amusing series of adventures which Douglas

MacLean has in "The Sunshine

Trail." Trouble certainly piles up high for him right from the family. And all the troubles develop from his attempts to help others.

Supporting Douglas MacLean is a fine cast including Edith Roberts, little Muriel Dana, Josephine

Scodwick, William Conright, Barney Purey, Rex Cherryman and Albert Hart.

STRAND TODAY

Doggone it, how would you feel, if you had been living for nine out of three score years in the little old village of Hocking and had been constant and happy to drive your old horse and buggy up the "Main Street" stopping now and then for a word with the folks, and suddenly,

without any warning, all your modes of life and habits were entirely disarranged. Instead of being able to drive peacefully up the "Main Street"

you were suddenly cut off by a screeching, puffing automobile that emitted smoke and gas and started your horse jumping by its honking. When you

CASINO TODAY

An interesting subject of discussion opened up by the Fox special production, "The Face on the Barroom Floor." Today, is how many ex-corials make good later on. But it is undoubtedly true that many men who have broken one law or another have gone through the hell of prison and become useful, even notable members of society. A good many of these men have undoubtedly been convicted wrongfully, as the hero of

"The Face on the Barroom Floor," portrayed by Henry B. Walthall, was.

An example in real life is that of O.

Henry, who served a jail sentence. In the light of recent evidence, it seems clear that O. Henry went to jail to shield a friend.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK—Prices were considerably mixed at the opening of Thursday's stock market, the severe fall in wheat Wednesday causing hesitation among the investors. Market support was evident in some of the industrial shares, United States Steel, DuPont, American Oil and American Locomotive rising 1/2 to 1 1/2 with Union Copper and American Express gaining 3/4. On the other hand liquidation was apparent in some of the low priced stocks, many of the low priced stocks of the year in Wednesday's decline attracted what is known as "barren" capital and well known stocks containing little competition with short covering operations, ran up prices of many shares to a noteworthy extent during the first thirty minutes. Foreign exchanges opened lower, demand sterling being off 1/4 at $4.51 1/2. The closing was followed by slight secondary operations showed a more stable movement of prices, buying becoming more general when it was perceived that liquidation was not resumed in important stocks.
